Typical structure of a bachelor/master thesis (2/2)

3. Text body

1. Introduction
 - Point out gap & formulate research question
 - Extract your problem clearly: What is the paper about?
 - Formulate the goal precisely: What do I want to achieve with the paper?
2. Literature review
 - Discuss existing research that is relevant for your paper
3. Method [empirical papers only]
 - Present data and how you collected & analyzed themTheoretical framework [theoretical papers only]
 - Applying a new perspective to the problem (maybe use a case if applicable)
4. Your contribution [“Findings” in empirical papers]
 - Present the contribution of your paper
5. Discussion and conclusion
 - Reflect on your contribution in light of existing research

What makes a good bachelor/master thesis?

| Not so good theses... | Better theses in turn... |
|---|--|
| Just repeat what is already known | Dare to go beyond what is already known, show courage with regard to transfer, critical reflection or one's own contribution |
| Remain bound to the already proposed literature of the expose | Go beyond given literature and try to a certain extent connect literature in a new way |
| Let results speak for themselves | Connect results to existing literature, show the contribution of the paper |
| Do not connect the different text modules/chapters | Connect arguments and show the relevance for the research question. Make the structure of the argumentation transparent |
| Contain undocumented or unproven claims | Document or prove their statements by providing good arguments, examples, quotes or references |
| Only occasionally pay attention to the formatting guidelines | Take the formal requirements seriously |
| Shed away from theories | Dare to make new theoretical claims to a certain degree |

How to find relevant literature

Exemplary approach

1. Look for Handbooks of the topic in library
2. Search a recent contribution to the topic (e.g., by searching for keywords such as „responsible leadership“, „transformative leadership“, oder „CSR“ und „leadership“)
3. Take a renowned journal or look for a review article (keywords: Meta-Analysis or Review)
4. Take a article as a starting point for further research by either looking at the cited literature in the reference list or in the introduction.

(Handbooks and books for general introduction into the theme can be found in the university library or are available at the Chair of Prof. Scherer or in the main library)

How to find relevant literature

Main electronic resources:

- Look directly for electronic journals (via webpage of institute)
- EBSCO (Business Source Premier)
- ISI Web of Knowledge (isiknowledge.com/) (also provides a ranking of journals)
- JSTOR
- Google Scholar (<https://scholar.google.ch/>)

Toward a political conception of corporate responsibility: Business and society seen from a Habermasian perspective

AG Scherer, G Palazzo - Academy of management review, 2007 - amr.aom.org

Abstract We review two important schools within business and society research, which we label positivist and postpositivist corporate social responsibility (CSR). The former is criticized because of its instrumentalism and normative vacuity and the latter because of its relativism, foundationalism, and utopianism. We propose a new approach, based on Jürgen Habermas's theory of democracy, and we define the new role of the business firm as a ...

What makes a good presentation in this seminar?

Content

- How far along is your thesis?
- What is the problem? What is the research question? Which goal does your thesis have?
- Which literature are you addressing?
- What methodology are you using?
- Do you have first (preliminary) results?
- How do you contribute to the existing literature?
- What are the open questions?

Structure

- Length: 20-25 min., 2 min. „Murmel-Pause“, then 20 min. discussion
- Limit number of slides! (Plan approx. 2 min. per slide)
- Restrict the slide text! Rather explain orally your arguments.
- Please give references in the slides (e.g., Scherer & Palazzo, 2011)
- Note down our feedback!
